SOLUTIONS FOR TODAY'S
GLOBALLY MOBILE WORKFORCE

<sup>1</sup> The products and services that make up MAXIS Mobility Solutions are provided by subsidiaries of both MetLife and AXA.

The pandemic has been a significant challenge to international mobility, and employers have had to react swiftly to ensure the best support and protection for their expatriate (expat) employees.

Global mobility all but paused for many months during the early stages of the pandemic with lockdowns, travel bans and restrictions. The dramatic impact COVID-19 has had – and is still having – has left multinational organisations evaluating their global mobility strategies to ensure they remain fit for purpose.

A recent study<sup>2</sup> found that the pandemic sparked an immediate need to review mobility programmes and the benefits expat workers are offered. It suggested that multinationals should consider enhancing coverage terms, and add virtual services such as telemedicine and EAP to better support their employees overseas

It's more crucial than ever before that you have the right solutions for your expat workers. You need to build flexible programmes and provide access to international healthcare and virtual services that are ready for the risks faced in this new world.
